

BARBRA

Singing to the crowds under the stars in Central Park, New York.

Above, Barbra the wail in "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever." Below, Barbra the matchmaker dances through "Hello, Dolly!"

How do you define a superstar? The best way is to give an example. A star shines up there in a sphere away from our everyday lives. A superstar does that, only more so—with a special glow. Barbra Streisand, for example.

Her ascent has been through several phases. In less than a decade she has made her mark on the stage, in Broadway musicals; as a recording star; as a television performer; on the London stage; at a record-breaking outdoor concert in Central Park, New York. She also married and had a child, Jason, her son, who is now three years old.

And now it looks as though this is the year when Miss Streisand lights up the cinema world, with four major movies playing round the country. She had already established herself as a unique show-business personality, a charismatic stage presence with a voice which could never be mistaken for anyone else's. Then she made her first film—"Funny Girl"—and won an Oscar for it. She followed that stunning debut by making three other movies in swift succession: "Hello, Dolly!", "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever" and "The Owl and the Pussycat."

Her latest movie, "The Owl and the Pussycat," is not a musical. But that doesn't mean that she's going to abandon her musical career, since she has signed a five-year contract to appear at a Las Vegas supper club.

This Week's PICTURE SHOW—AP Newsfeatures.

Soviet Ship Sits, Watches American Subs

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
ROTA, Spain (AP) — Twelve miles outside the biggest U.S. Navy base in Europe sits a Russian spy ship watching U.S. Polaris missile submarines come and go.

The ship this month is the Verikol, disguised as a fishing trawler. Next month it may be a different vessel.

Its job is part of the grim spy game carried out daily by both sides at the joint U.S.-Spanish Navy base at Rota on Spain's south coast.

Rota tries to stay out of the news, but is in it now because it is one of the 10 U.S. bases up for negotiation between the Spanish and American governments. If agreement is not reached by Sept. 26, the U.S. military will have to abandon the base.

Like all U.S. bases in Spain, Rota is used by troops of both countries. But the Americans dominate. Of the base's 6,100 acres, the Spanish navy uses 200.

The base command is shared by Spanish Rear Adm. Francisco J. de Elizalde and U.S. Capt. William R. McQuilkin of New Orleans. McQuilkin also commands all U.S. Navy activity in Spain.

"We are not a nuclear submarine base," he says, explaining that only five per cent of Rota's activities are devoted to servicing nuclear submarines. The main function of the base is to provide logistical support for the U.S. 6th Fleet.

Besides a nine-ship submarine squadron, Rota has nine "ten-ant" units, including two air squadrons involved in reconnaissance and intelligence.

Per Year, Office only .18.20 Their spy planes include EA3B By mail in Hempstead, Nevada, twin jets and EC121 converted Lafayette, Howard, Pike, and Clark Counties —

One Month .12.00 Fleet carriers also use Rota as a home base.

Three Months .2.90 "Sure we are in the intelligence business. Everybody is nowdays," one high U.S. Navy officer said.

One Year .15.60 The Russian spy ship outside Cadiz Bay hides some humor.

One Month .12.00 "The Soviets hung themselves by their own petard, so to speak," another U.S. officer observed. "If they had rigged up something besides a fishing vessel they could have avoided Spain's 12-mile limit for fishing College Student Bargain Offer ships and come in six miles Nine Months .6.75 closer."

A wider, flatter version of the Gibson Girl look (upper left) has wispy tendrils framing the face and a rhinestone choker by Giorgio di Sant Angelo at the throat. Hair stylist Hugh Harrison (insert) fashioned the Gibson and other hairstyles for spring. Fluffy, bouncy curls frame the face in a side part with a barrette to clip hair into place (upper right). The aluminum coil shaper with an easy-to-hold handle (lower left) shapes, trims, styles and shortens hair for at-home retouching of your hairdo. Hair pulled sleeky up and away from the face forms a topknot with tendrils taped at sides to "set" into place (center). Springy curls pulled back from the face (lower right) show another important look for spring.

Here is a hand that decided a recent match between teams captained by Exuberant Ed and Cautious Cal. Both captains sat South and at each table the West player led the deuce of spades.

In line with his policy of going out after everything that wasn't nailed down, Ed let the spade lead come around toward his nine. East intercepted with the jack and returned the deuce of diamonds. Ed's nine was covered by West's 10, which was allowed to hold the trick. The king of diamonds was also allowed to hold and at this point West led another spade. Nothing daunted Ed. He played dummy's 10, only to see East win with the king. The defense had four tricks in and East completed Ed's downfall by playing the six of clubs. Ed had to take the club finesse also, since otherwise his queen and jack of hearts would be shut out forever and, when that fourth finesse lost, he was one down.

Cautious Cal wasn't going to go for any of those finesesses. He could see nine tricks against any combination of cards and went right after them.

The first three tricks went to dummy's ace of spades and ace-king of hearts. Then he led the queen of clubs and did try that finesse without really caring how it came out. It lost, of course, but Cal collected one spade, four hearts, one diamond and three clubs for a total of nine tricks.

We rather hate to chronicle this triumph of super conservatism. Some how or other, we think that we would have gone down just as Ed did.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The penguin is a flightless bird that walks erect and has a "dress-suited" appearance. Penguins are native to the cold climates of Antarctica. South America, Australia, New Zealand and the shores of South Africa. The World Almanac notes, however, that the Galapagos penguin lives on the equator, near Ecuador, thanks to the cool waters of the Humboldt Current.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Haphazard X Raying Should Be Avoided

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: Please go into some detail about X rays. Our dentist X rays our teeth every six months. This includes my two children, 5 and 8 years. Are X rays harmful for children? And are X rays necessary every six months?—Carol J.

ANSWER: Much has been written, here and elsewhere, about possible harm from dental X rays. But because of continuing interest, let's review current beliefs.

Two "prestigious scientists" at the AEC's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., have only this week publicly stated that "... and level of radiation poses health problems." Therefore, "no X ray dose is acceptable since the smallest dose can produce mutations (irreversible changes) in body cells."

Beginning with that controversial, but widely held belief, here are some suggested guidelines for use of dental X rays.

1. Patients should not be routinely X rayed. And, full-mouth multiple X rays should be limited to special situations.

2. Children and pregnant women should not be exposed to dental X rays unless shown to be vital to their health. And then patients should be protected with a leaded apron. This is required by law in California and Wisconsin.

But it also must be recognized that dental X rays are important diagnostic tools in preventing dental disease and in maintaining dental health. Therefore, use of X rays cannot for the present be entirely eliminated.

Many molecular biophysicists are unequivocal concerning danger from exposure to even the smallest amount of dental X rays and often refuse them, sometimes unwisely, for themselves and their families. Yet they are often little concerned with radiation which they themselves produce and to which many an innocent person is exposed.

For instance, it was recently revealed that a nuclear experimental lab located on the edge of a large university had "sprung a leak." The leak was of a magnitude large enough to disrupt unrelated experiments in other labs at least as far away as a few hundred yards.

Thus, the "leak" exposed people living and working within this radius to radiation over and above the amounts

California Angels Are Playing Devil

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer
The California Angels are playing the devil with opposing pitchers.

Led by Roger Repoz, Alex Johnson, Joe Azcue and Bill Voss, the Angels pounded out 14 hits in beating the Kansas City Royals 11-7 Friday night to boost their record to 3-0 and their hit total to 40.

Repoz got the Angels started with a two-run homer, his first in the second inning. Johnson, Azcue and Voss also drove in two runs each.

Boston topped Washington 4-1 at night and Baltimore nipped Detroit 3-2 in 10 innings and the Chicago White Sox edged Milwaukee 5-4 in other daytime American League action.

In the National League, the Chicago Cubs shaded Montreal 2-1, Philadelphia downed Pittsburgh 2-0, Atlanta stopped Houston 3-0, St. Louis trounced the New York Mets 7-3, San Diego beat Los Angeles 7-2 and San Francisco edged Cincinnati 4-3.

After Repoz belted his homer, the Angels added one run each in the third and fourth and then erupted for five in the fifth to build up a 9-1 lead for winner Clyde Wright.

Kansas City fought back with three runs off Wright in the sixth and three unearned tallies off Rudy May in the seventh. Ed Kirkpatrick drove in three runs with a bases-empty homer and a two-run double.

Boston took advantage of a balk and a wild pitch to score two runs in the third inning and added a pair in the ninth on Rico Petrocelli's run-scoring double and a sacrifice fly by Luis Alvarado in beating Washington.

Frank Robinson opened the 10th with a walk and scored on Brooks Robinson's two-out single to give Baltimore its fourth victory without a loss. Mark Belanger's double gave Baltimore a 2-2 tie in the fifth. Willie Horton and Jim Northrup singled in Detroit's run, while Baltimore's other tally came on Norm Cash's throwing error.

The White Sox beat Milwaukee with a three-run fifth in which Bobby Knoop homered and Luis Aparicio and Carlos May produced runs with singles. Milwaukee scored twice in the first and once in the eighth off rookie Jerry Janeski and once in the ninth off Wilbur Wood. Danny Walton drove in two of the Brewers runs, and Ken Berry drove in Chicago's other two.

Where You Finish Is What Counts

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — There's an oft repeated adage around auto race tracks that says, "It isn't where you start but where you finish that counts."

"You can quote me on that," said soft-spoken Glenn Wood, a former driver and long-time builder of fast racers for the rich stock car circuit. "If we can get our problems licked—and I think we have—we can win this thing no matter where we start."

Wood was speaking dejectedly Thursday after he, his brother, Leonard, and driver Cale Yarborough had spent three days tinkering with their balky Mercury entry in Sunday's $138,100 Alabama 500.

The brothers, doing most of the work themselves because of the shortage of help, had gone through three engines and encountered multiple other problems trying to reach what they considered a competitive speed on the ultra-fast 2.66 mile Alabama International Speedway here.

The Cubs were one out away from their third consecutive defeat when Ron Santo singled and Johnny Callison unloaded a two-run homer, ruining a fine performance by Montreal's Joe Spina, who allowed only three hits over the first eight innings. It was the fourth straight setback for the winless Expos.

Woody Fryman held Pittsburgh hitless for 7 1-3 innings and finished with a four-hit shutout as Philadelphia blanked Detroit 3-0.

Deron Johnson's two-run homer to their third straight win, Johnson connected in the fourth inning off Bob Yeale, who allowed only three hits in seven innings.

Al Oliver's single to deep short spoiled Fryman's hitless skunk and Bob Robertson followed with a solid single. The Pirates got two more hits in the ninth.

Willing Helping Hand

CHICAGO — (NEA) — Gale Sayers swirled through the hotel's revolving door which, 10 minutes later, began to catch its breath.

The winged Sayers (flew down Michigan Boulevard, wearing no overcoat this wintry Saturday, sport jacket flapping. A sportswriter was to the rear and was being sucked along by the wind current while his scarf pulled hard from behind.

Sayers, the superb Chicago Bear running back, had just made a speech at a morning church banquet. (Topic: Religion and Football: "I would no more think of going into church on Sunday morning unprepared, than of suiting up for a game without a week of practice. Neither is just a Sunday thing.") He was kept later than expected. He had only a few minutes to make another appointment, to drive from downtown Chicago to the South Side several miles away. For the first few blocks, the writer feared Sayers intended to sprint the distance.

Now, both were in Sayers' red Continental Mark III. Sayers was cutting on a dime, making end sweeps, breaking into the open and leaving the rest of the traffic behind like forlorn defensive backs.

Sayers has much to do in a day. And not much time to do it in.

He tenaciously keeps fit. He is a top stockbroker. He is one of the five Chicago Park District commissioners. He is active in many pursuits in the black community. He is a family man. He was named one of the 10 outstanding young men by the National Chamber of Commerce. He is irrefragable, implausible, in rapid transit.

On the car radio he tuned into Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, which is a neighborhood project to enlighten and aid struggling blacks. "Jesse tells it like it is," said Sayers. "They're at the Capitol Theater. I'm usually there, too, on Saturday mornings. Two, three, four thousand people show up. They discuss the topics of the day and how to get things improved."

"I lend my name, maybe that's all a big-name character can do. Lend your support, show that you're interested. But a couple years ago I did picket, walked right outside carrying a sign. It was in front of a supermarket. They had promised jobs to blacks, then backed down. The place was filthy, too. And they overcharged. The same hamburger meat you'd buy in a white neighborhood for 82 cents, say, would cost $1.02 here. We got all that changed."

When Jackson finished, Sayers, with one hand and one eye, shut off the radio and switched on the car stereo and an album, "Step One" by Jimmy McGriff, came on.

A citywide Gale Sayers Foundation for newspaper boys is a prime project of his, he was saying.

"I go around and talk to the boys, and the best ones, the ones who are doing well in school, too, will get certain things," said Sayers. "If they need pants for school, we get them pants. If they have musical talent and can't afford a trumpet, maybe, we get the trumpet."

"In Omaha, where I grew up, I was a newspaper boy, too. I was just like some of these boys. I know what it is to get up at five in the morning and deliver papers in zero weather. But it's good training. They learn what hard work is, and won't be afraid of it later on."

As a park commissioner, an unpaid but prestigious position ("Very heavy stuff," he said) he is able to not only get a loose rim on an outdoor basketball court fixed "in 15 minutes," but also is there to see that, when construction is needed as it often is, a black company's bid is considered equally with others.

He double-parks his car in front of the Fifth Ward office and hurries in for a meeting with Committeeman and City Treasurer Marshall Korshak. Two young men from the University of Chicago hope for Sayers' and the park board's co-operation in a "Rock Festival" planned for this summer in Soldier Field. "Concretely speaking," says one stiff youth, "it would be greatly advantageous for the City of Chicago." Sayers encouragingly says he will read the proposal at home.

Now he is off again, this time home for a lunch of stuffed green peppers, sausage and strawberry Kool-Aid. He said he rarely gets home before midnight during the week, and is always up by 5:30 a.m. He is at his stockbroker office by 7:30, works out at the Y instead of eating lunch. "Gotta get in shape early," he said. "The Bears drafted three running backs and got two more in trades."

When does he relax? "For an hour when I get up in the morning," he said. "I go down into my den and listen to my stereo. Don't think about anything."

His wife, Linda, said that a few days ago an eccentric friend called at 6 a.m. to tell them her cat just had three kittens.

"Of course," she said. "Gale was up already. But all he said was, 'So what.' He couldn't be bothered then. He was resting."

Lonborg Healthy; Red Sox Hopes Up

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — (NEA) — "Every year is a comeback year," said Jim Lonborg, 28, once the star of the Boston Red Sox pitching staff. "No matter if you win 20 games the year before, or only seven, you still have to start fresh."

Lonborg is starting fresher than most, however. In 1967 he won the American League's Cy Young Award for his 22 wins. But in the last two years he has won a total of 13 games; the lean 6-6 righthander with lank dark blond hair and the tapered legs of a thoroughbred has had to contend more with restoring his bones to their proper place than with putting the ball where he desires.

The start of last season, while not nearly as explosive as the end of the 1967 season, did have its moments of exultation for Lonborg.

He began by winning his first six games. This was fine, though it could not yet compare with, say, the last day of the 1967 season when he pitched Boston to a dramatic, come-from-behind pennant-winning victory over Minnesota. (The teams were tied for the American League lead going into the game.)

At game's end, Fenway Park, Boston's tub of a playing field, was transformed into a sea of tumultuous humanity and Lonborg, hero of the moment, was washed up on the crowd and flung about like a giant cork.

"It was so great," he recalled. "It was the first time in my life I was ever carried off a field... then, suddenly, I was terrified."

The start of 1969 was particularly satisfying because 1968, the year after the impossible Dream season, had been a calamity. He tore ligaments in his knee while skiing on Christmas Eve. He did not pitch again until late May, 1968. He went on to win six games, and lost 10.

That spring he also caused some consternation among baseball's Organization Men when he told this reporter, "I can't stand to watch a baseball game. There's just no action. It's dull. I'd much rather watch a basketball or hockey game. Playing baseball is another matter. I do enjoy that."

Upon reflection, and enduring the criticism of the Lords of Baseball, Lonborg decided that he was misquoted. "What I meant," he says now, "was that I don't enjoy watching baseball if I could be playing it."

He was enjoying it again in the spring of 1969. But his delight was short-lived. At bat one day, he fouled off a pitch that broke the little toe on his left foot. He was out of action for four weeks.

"I wanted to come back slowly," he said, "because I remember the story of Dizzy Dean breaking a toe and then rushing back too fast. He put too much pressure on his shoulder and ruined his career."

Then Lonborg was out two more weeks for military duty, and three more weeks when, running in sandals to throw out garbage one rainy night, he cut his left foot on a rock. He won one more game, lost 11.

His shoulder, however, was sore most of the season.

Lonborg and the Red Sox are hopeful he will return to his 1967 form. He says he is now healthy. He made certain he did not ski last winter, though it took much restraint.

"There's nothing greater than beating a mountain," said Lonborg. He considered that. "Unless," he went on, "it's beating a batter."

Arkansas Game and Fish

By JAY KAFFKA

LITTLE ROCK — In one of the busiest meetings in several months, the board of Game and Fish Commissioners agreed to delay the opening of the regular 1971 November deer hunt from Nov. 8 to Nov. 22, thus moving the opening date from the second Monday of the month to the Monday prior to the Thanksgiving holiday period. It is understood that all subsequent November deer seasons will open the Monday prior to the Thanksgiving holiday period. The move is the first change in the deer hunting dates since the 1920's. To clarify matters, the Commission said the date change will not affect the 1970 hunt since many deer hunters have already made vacation plans for the opening hunt on Nov. 9 the December hunt for 1971 will not be affected by the change.

Chief of Game Bob Leonard presented the Commission with a request from the Arkansas Education Association to move the deer hunt to the Thanksgiving period so that students and teachers could hunt deer three days instead of just on Saturday, thus cutting down on school absenteeism. Leonard also outlined several other reasons that would be beneficial in making the date change, and said from a biological viewpoint the change was in the best interest of the hunters and hunting.

The Commission entered into an agreement with Arkansas Tech College at Russellville to conduct an in-service training school for staff employees, as well as persons keenly interested in future employment with the Commission. The potential personnel, designated as cadets in training, would be graded according to scholastic achievement during the five-week course, and these cadets would be given priority consideration in and Fish staff. Under the approved plan, the Commission will pay the tuition and book costs, as well as providing a small amount of reimbursement for the time the cadet spends at the school.

After hearing from a delegation from the Heber Springs area, the Commission agreed to purchase tracts of land so that a nursery pond could be built on Greers Ferry Lake. The Commission had previously declined to secure the land because of the cost, but after the Greers Ferry Lake Association obtained the necessary options and worked out all the problems concerned with the transactions, the Commission allocated $67,400 for the lands. Special recognition was also given to acknowledge the efforts of the association helping with the project.

A delegation from Baxter County asked that the Commission consider rescinding the sport fish spearfishing regulation for Lake Norfolk, since many merchants of the area felt that the loss of bass to the spearfisherman had an adverse effect upon tourism and the local economy. The Commission later decided to take no action on the request. The delegation also asked that the Commission relinquish its title rights on 4 1/2 acres of land near Mountain Home. According to the group, the property had been deserted and was in poor state of upkeep. The Commission will study the request.

The Arkansas Bowhunters, Inc., endorsed the Commission's proposed license changes involving the need for charging extra for turkey and deer tags. However, the spokesman suggested that tags not be good for either gun or bow, and therefore establish separate tags for each. In this manner the Commission would get statistical data on archery hunters and would provide a more accurate census of deer and turkey gun hunters, according to the spokesman.

Members of the Sheridan Beagle Club asked the Commission to oppose habitat destruction due to even age forest management by the paper companies, set the rabbit season so that it would run from Oct. 15 through Feb. 28, that an additional enforcement officer be hired in Grant County, set a season on foxes and wolves to cut down on using the predator hunts as a guise to poach deer, and to control pollution in Lost Creek, Hurricane Creek, and the Saline River. No action was taken on any request, and staff members explained the role of the Commission in dealing with pollution problems. The other requests will receive further study by the technical staff.

Director Andrew Hulsey reported to the Commission that the preliminary results indicate that most sportsmen seem to favor the future initiation of deer and turkey tags at an additional fee to the basic hunting license. He said the basic criticism by most tags that a hunter could buy. He suggested that under the proposed changes, hunters would be restricted to a limit of two deer tags and two turkey tags.

In other action, the Commission voted to: Pay a fair share amounting to about $3,500 to various projects being supervised by the Mississippi Flyway Council and to make a biologist available to assist in waterfowl work in Canada this coming summer. Withdraw opposition to the Bayou deVieux, Cache River drainage projects when and if the fish and wildlife losses are assured of mitigation at project expense.

Continue a creel census study on Lake Beaver in cooperation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service aimed at determining why fishing success on the man-made large reservoirs declines after a few years of excellent fishing and then slowly recovers to medium to good fishing, but never as "hot" as the first few years.

Adopt a regulation providing protection to caged calfish operations on small areas of certain lakes leased by the Game and Fish Commission.

Accept the low bid of $71,298 for the construction of two buildings at the Joe Hogan fish hatchery at Lonoke.

Approve the plan by the State Highway Department to establish parking areas and ramps in return for a right-of-way across a small portion of the northwest corner of Lake Pine Bluff.

Purchase 82 acres of land for addition to the 18,000-acre Black River Wildlife Management Area. The new tract is situated near the Brookings community in Clay County. The Commission also approved a plan to sell timber off the area which will be covered with water when a new 300-acre fishing lake is constructed.

Approve a pay raise plan for employees, as well as a slight increase in the travel expenses as passed by the special session of the legislature.

Purchase five new two-way mobile radio units.

The next regular meeting of the Commission will be in Lake Village, Arkansas on April 13-14.

HOMER CIRCLE NAMED AS COMMISSIONER
ROGERS — Homer Circle of Rogers, angling editor of Sports Afield magazine, has been named by Gov. Rockefeller to fill the vacancy on the Game and Fish Commission created by the death of Raymond Farris of Biscoe. Circle will fill the remainder of Farris' term and will serve until July 1, 1971. Under the amendment creating the Commission, he cannot be reappointed to another term.

Circle is past president of the Outdoor Writers Association of America and is currently chairman of the association's fish nomenclature committee. In 1968 he received the association's highest award for conservation writing, the Jade of Chiefs award. He is a past president of Arkansas Outdoor Writers Association and is a member of the Fishing Hall of Fame in Chicago.

Before becoming editor of Sports Afield, Circle wrote fishing, hunting, and camping articles on a free lance basis for various magazines. He and his wife, Gayle, have one daughter and three grandchildren.

Indoor Swimming Meet Planned
CINCINNATI (AP) — The 1971 National AAU Men's and Women's Short Course Indoor Swimming Championships will be held April 9-12 at the University of Washington.

Officials of the AAU also said Thursday night the 1971 event would serve as the trials for the Pan-American Games.

Unser to Drive Supercharged Ford
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Al Unser, who pressed Mario Andretti for the U.S. Auto Club championship last year, was nominated Thursday to drive a turbocharged Ford car in the 54th Indianapolis 500-mile race May 30.

Joe Leonard was named as Al's teammate in one of three Fords entered by Vel's Parnelli Jones Ford of Torrance, Calif.

No driver was named for the third car.

A License For The Press

It was only a suggestion that Dr. W. Walter Menninger made last week, that news-men be licensed by the government, and it is likely to remain only a suggestion. Still, it does raise doubts over the competency of the press, aside from the doubtful constitutionality of such a move.

Dr. Menninger, a member of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence as well as a noted psychiatrist, was probably brought to his suggestion by the quality of news itself, which he believes is unable to put events in their proper perspective, that the public is often misled by news. For instance, news of a race riot might tend to make many whites believe that the Negro community across the nation is either in a state of revolt or an inactive accomplice to a revolt; or, when the public sees the police taking action, then law enforcement becomes one and the same with brutality.

This seems to be his most well-taken point, but it does also seem to indirectly insult the intelligence of the public which, on the whole, has much more judgment than to believe that one image mirrors an entire picture. In fact, this point isn't too far removed from the notion that a violent scene on a TV western prompts violence in the streets.

As far as weeding out "individuals who are totally inept" by licensing, a license has never been a guarantee of perfection. Moreover, in a vast majority of cases, competency is its own reward in the news profession. An incompetent newsman would only be given responsibility by a firm which would have to love libel suits and the loss of a public faith. And licensed professionals in other fields, as individuals, can often remain undetected amateurs and incompetents, while in the news business a bad apple can disgrace an entire firm—which has prompted a number of cautious procedures by personnel offices and editors.

The press is certainly no spotless business, and it does tend to cry aloud when struck by a critic. It has its flaws and its imperfections. But licensing is one of the more ridiculous suggestions of our rather insane times. Who's going to keep an eye on city hall or the federal government, for instance, when truth is compromised by having such bodies in control of the licenses?—Savannah (Ga.) Morning News

Thoughts Of The Times

As part of a general switch-over in jargon under a new administration, personnel at the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington have been instructed to stop referring to "the poor." Instead, says a staff memo, the term should be "low income individuals."

Also to be dropped is "anti-poverty" in favor of "poverty programs," because says Director Donald Rumsfeld, OEO hasn't enough money to wage an all-out war against such conditions.

Guess that clinches what the Good Book says: You have the low income individuals always with you.—Roanoke (Va.) Times

The Gloom Gap

The world's "golden age of optimism, confidence and security" has ended, says a scholar, 76. It proves that old folks, if they try hard enough, can be almost as gloomy as the under-30 crowd.—Knoxville (Tenn.) News-Sentinel

School Board Sells Bonds

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Little Rock School Board voted Thursday to accept the low bid by a combine of seven financial firms for the sale of $2.5 million in construction bonds.

The combine bid an effective interest rate of 5.9917 per cent. Five bids were submitted on the bonds, which were authorized in the March 1969 school election. The bonds have not been sold previously because of the high interest rate and the state's limitation on interest rates chargeable on such bonds.

Meat Cancer Policy Being Reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has decided to review its long-standing regulations allowing beef processors to carve out "cancer eye" and similar tumors from cattle and sell the rest of the meat to consumers.

The joint review by Agriculture Department scientists and the Surgeon General's Office could lead to a change in a 60-year-old meat inspection policy that last year permitted 103,000 cattle carcasses to be sold on the market after tumorous parts were whittled out.

But Dr. Gilbert Wise, the department's deputy administrator for consumer protection, said there is no reason to believe anything is wrong with present policy.

Wise, however, said Thursday the government decided to go ahead with the review "because of public apprehension" following a Feb. 9 Associated Press story disclosing Agriculture Department statistics showing Americans each year consume millions of pounds of beef from cattle infected with "cancer eye" or similar tumorous disorders.

Rep. John S. Monagan, D-Conn., chairman of a House government operations subcommittee, formally asked for the review, after noting the department's more stringent rules affecting poultry. It was Monagan who disclosed Thursday the government's decision to undertake the review.

The difference in meat and chicken processing is that the government requires any bird with a tumorous part be entirely destroyed with no parts passed on to the consumer.

The Agriculture Department says a localized tumor such as the eye of a cow—referred to as "cancer eye"—poses no threat to the rest of the carcass.

This isn't so with chickens and other birds, the experts note, because leukosis or chicken cancer virus may spread throughout the bird.

Conifer Girl Scouts Preparing for Festival of Fun During May

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Just as "April showers bring May flowers," so do "April preparations bring May celebrations," for Girl Scouts in the Conifer Council anyway. You see, a Festival of Fun is being sponsored by the Council at the Four State Fairgrounds in Texarkana on Saturday, May 2 from 2 to 5 p.m.

Local Girl Scouts are busily preparing for the event. For instance, Junior Troop 356 will be participating in "Bike Whiz," so they are now engaged in work on the Cyclist Badge under the guidance of leaders, Mrs. John Hackler and Mrs. Kenny Atkins.

Junior Troop 311 has been assigned "Lashing" as a project. Because there isn't a badge using lashing, this troop applied to Girl Scouts of America to use lashing as the theme for "Our Troop's Own Badge." They received permission and have submitted a list of requirements and a drawing for the badge emblem for approval. Leaders are Mrs. Kenneth Petre, Mrs. Carlton King and Mrs. Charles "Butch" Beck.

Spectators will be sampling cookies baked by Junior Troop 282, as they are entered in the "Cooking" category. That means these girls will be spending time between now and May 2 in the kitchen getting ready with nods of approval from leaders, Mrs. Roger Pletcher and Mrs. Wayne Whitley.

The girls in Junior Troop 297 are preparing to take part in the "Fire Builders" group and will be demonstrating fire building and safety. They will be "keeping the home fires burning" under the watchful eyes of leaders, Mrs. Charles Bryan and Mrs. E.L. "Skipper" White.

The Festival of Fun will be an opportunity for parents and community friends to see the true value of Girl Scouting as expressed in activities. There will be no admission charge and everyone is invited.

There will be concession stands for refreshments and fun for all those attending—from pre-schoolers to grandparents. Local Girl Scouts not taking part in the Festival will still want to go to it and be among the many spectators who are expected. Families and friends will also be going.

Mrs. Paul Thompson, President of the Council, said, "The Festival was written by Miss Anna Branson of Dallas, a professional writer who was formerly a member of the Conifer staff. Bill Bean is chairman of the site committee, and A.A. Melde is chairman of the concessions committee."

Mistrial in Nashville Murder Case

NASHVILLE, Ark. (AP)—The first-degree murder trial of Cloys "Tom" Thomas, 41 of Nashville, ended in a mistrial Thursday after the jury failed to reach a verdict.

Thomas was accused in the shooting death of his wife, Billie June Thomas, 39, whose body was recovered last Jan. 31 from a shallow grave a mile west of Center Point.

The all-male jury began deliberating the case Wednesday afternoon and worked until 9 p.m. Wednesday. The jurors resumed deliberations Thursday morning and continued until late afternoon when the foreman, Ray Lindille, told the court the jurors were hopelessly deadlocked.

Thomas testified that he did not know how his wife died, but admitted burying her. He said he heard a shot in the adjoining bedroom of the couple's trailer home Jan. 16, 1970 and found his wife. He said a shotgun and a rifle were in the room where he found his wife.

Thomas remains in jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Teachers on Strike in Many Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Teachers were on strike today in Minneapolis and others were poised to walk out in Los Angeles, Muskogee, Okla., and Butte, Mont. Issues ranged from salary demands to school board desegregation policies.

The 1,800-member AFL-CIO Minneapolis Federation of Teachers struck Thursday in defiance of the state's no-strike law for public employees and a court restraining order.

Half of the 1,600 members of the rival City of Minneapolis Education Association joined the walkout that closed about 50 of the city's 99 schools. Only a small minority of the 68,000 pupils received regular instruction.

The strikers demanded a salary scale of $8,000 to $16,100 while the school board had offered a scale of $7,500 to $15,000. Nonsalary demands included a class size limit of 35 in elementary schools.

In the 653,000-pupil Los Angeles school district, the nation's second largest, teachers voted overwhelmingly to strike Monday over demands for a 6 per cent wage hike. It would be the district's first major strike.

The Board of Education has offered 5 per cent and superintendent Robert E. Kelly said the district simply does not have the money to meet union demands. A board negotiator called total union requests "utopian."

Nonsalary demands include a class size limit of 25 in junior and senior high schools and 20 in elementary schools, an aide for each teacher and carpeting, soundproofing and air conditioning in all classrooms.

The United Teachers of Los Angeles claims membership of 22,000 of the 25,000 teachers in the sprawling, 583-school district. Present salary range is $7,230 to $13,650.

Hiring practice, not money, was the issue in Butte, where a strike was called for today. Sources in the Butte Teachers Union said the basic issue was the school administrator's action in hiring a vice principal without regard to the union seniority list.

In Muskogee, some 275 of the city's 400 teachers voted to walk off their jobs until the school desegregation problem is resolved. They also said they were protesting the "apathy of Muskogee citizens in the present crisis."

The school board earlier submitted a desegregation plan that was approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Then the board discarded the plan.

HEW officials warned the board Monday that unless another acceptable plan is presented by April 17, the district will not be in compliance with the law and the case will be referred to the Justice Department.

Teachers said a loss of federal aid would result in many teachers losing their jobs and others taking reductions in pay. School Supt. Jon Statton said the board would draw a new plan by next Tuesday.

3 American Military Planes Crash

BANGKOK (AP) — Three American military planes have crashed in eastern Asia, taking the lives of at least nine persons and injuring 30 others, U.S. officials reported.

A riddled U.S. Air Force reconnaissance plane hobbling back to its home base crashed Friday into the officers' quarters at Udorn Air Base in northeastern Thailand, killing three Americans and injuring 30.

In north central Laos, an Air America C130 cargo plane plowed into a mountain and burned Friday, killing all six crewmen aboard.

And in Japan a U.S. Navy jet fighter crashed into Buckner Bay in central Okinawa today. The pilot was reported missing.

The Udorn crash occurred when the pilot of an RF4 jet, which was hit by antiaircraft fire over Laos, attempted an emergency landing but lost control.

Although the pilot and his co-pilot ejected safely, their plane plunged into the barracks beside the runway, exploded on impact and set fire to nine buildings, an officers' trailer and the office of the Armed Forces Radio Network.

A U.S. official said the final casualty figures were not immediately available, and that the toll might rise.

The names of the three dead men were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The 30 injured men were treated for smoke inhalation, heat exhaustion and minor injuries but were said to be in good condition.

The Air America crash over Laos took place during cloudy weather. There was no indication that the plane had been downed by enemy fire.

ABA Suggests Changes in Method

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The American Bar Association's top judge assessor called today for changes in the way Supreme Court nominees are evaluated.

Lawrence E. Walsh, a New York lawyer who heads the ABA's standing committee on the federal judiciary, suggested the group could begin by telling the Senate and the public how the nominee stacks up against other judges from the same region.

Walsh, in a prepared Law Day speech at Vanderbilt University, said the committee would retain, at the same time, its present system of advising whether nominees meet minimal professional standards.

He said Thursday night the committee is considering changing evaluation procedures and "we hope to have them revised before the next nominee to the court is selected."

The former federal judge said use of a dual system might encourage presidents "to attempt to satisfy the higher standard" as well as "affect the vote of some senators."

A nominee, he said, would be evaluated "against both minimum standards of professional competence and those which would limit nominees to the best available in the same judicial circuit."

However, Walsh ruled out any assessment by the ABA of a nominee's political and ideological attributes, saying the bar association has no special competence to make such judgments.

Hospital Funds Received

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Little Rock Veterans Administration Hospital has received $214,000 of a special $15 million allocation to VA hospitals throughout the nation for spending during April, May and June.

K. J. O'Brien, hospital director, said Thursday the funds would be used for dental care and drugs among other things.

South Has Produced Justices

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Since the birth of the republic, the South has been a prime producer of Supreme Court justices.

In announcing he will look outside the South for his next nominee in the aftermath of the Senate's rejection of South Carolina's Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and Georgia-born G. Harrold Carswell, President Nixon noted Thursday that only one of the current eight justices is from Dixie.

He is Justice Hugo L. Black of Alabama, the third person from that state to serve on the court.

In all, 40 Supreme Court justices have come from Southern and border states, with Kentucky atop the list with nine judges—seven of whom came after the Civil War.

Twenty-seven states have been represented on the court in the listings for the nation's 98 justices.

New York is tied with Kentucky for individual state high—at nine each—with five of New York's natives being named to the court after the Civil War.

Massachusetts and Pennsylvania are next on the state list with eight justices each, followed by Maryland with seven, Ohio with six, and Virginia and New Jersey with five each.

South Carolina has placed four persons on the court, just one since 1865, while Georgia also has had four Supreme Court representatives, three since the Civil War.

Four Tennessee representatives have served on the court—three of them since the Civil War. Two men were appointed to the court from North Carolina—both prior to the war.

New Hampshire, Connecticut and Minnesota have had three justices apiece, while Maine, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois all placed two men on the court.

States with one representative to serve on the high bench are Iowa, Rhode Island, Louisiana, Texas, California, Kansas and Colorado.

As for the present court, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Nixon's first and only nominee to win Senate approval, is a Minnesota native, as is Justice William O. Douglas.

Justice Potter Stewart was born in Michigan, Justice John M. Harlan in Illinois, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. in New Jersey and Justice Byron R. White in Colorado. Justice Thurgood Marshall, the only Negro on the tribunal, is a Maryland native.

Ironically, while Nixon has had trouble getting the Senate to agree to the appointment of a Southerner, the man whose resignation produced the vacancy—Abe Fortas—was born in Tennessee.

WR Paves Way for 3rd Term Announcement

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller sent a letter to state Republican officials Thursday in which he laid the groundwork for an announcement that he would seek a third term.

The governor explained in the letter his decision to reconsider a previous statement that he would not seek more than two terms.

"There has been much progress, but the job isn't done," Rockefeller said. "I am not satisfied and I am sure you are not either."

The letter went to Republican elected officials and officers of GOP county committees.

Rookie Going, Space Flight on Schedule

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Apollo 13 astronauts are ready to fly man's riskiest moon-landing mission today after a rookie spaceman earned a seat with a remarkable and unprecedented rehearsal.

Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., 42, and civilians Fred W. Haise Jr., 36, and John L. Swigert, 38, were set to ride a giant Saturn 5 rocket away from their home planet at 2:13 p.m. EST.

Their goal is a search for clues to the origin of the moon—and the solar system—in the rugged and ancient Fra Mauro highlands.

In the most difficult space maneuver ever attempted, Lovell and Haise are to steer their lunar lander toward a precision touchdown in a narrow valley surrounded by high hills, ridges, craters and rocks as big as automobiles.

The countdown for America's third moon-landing expedition proceeded because Swigert proved in a crash two-day trial that he could move from the Apollo 13 backup team to the first team.

The decision to fly Swigert was made less than 24 hours before the scheduled launching.

If Swigert hadn't made it, the launching would have been postponed until May 9 at a cost of at least $800,000.

He got his chance when another backup astronaut, Charles Duke, exposed the prime crewmen, Lovell, Haise and Thomas K. Mattingly II, to German measles. Because he had no immunity, Mattingly faced the danger of being disabled by the disease in space.

Lovell and Haise were immune, as was Swigert. Throughout the week, space agency officials considered postponing the mission, but decided to give Swigert a trial despite initial objections from mission commander Lovell, who wanted to keep his team intact.

Lovell, Haise and Mattingly had trained together for two years and were described as a superbly conditioned unit.

But Lovell agreed, and Swigert slipped into a spaceship simulator with Lovell and Haise on Thursday to practice critical maneuvers that require split-second timing by all three astronauts.

The suspense built Friday morning when NASA Administrator Thomas O. Paine flew to Cape Kennedy to review the training and all other aspects of the flight.

After 2½ hours, including a half-hour private meeting with Lovell, Paine gave the go-ahead to continue the mission with Swigert moving into the center couch of the command module as its pilot.

Plant to Work 1000 Persons

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — The Speed Queen plant here, which will eventually employ about 1,000 persons, has begun operations with 60 employees manufacturing wringer-type washers.

Roland Springsprough, manager of the plant, said about 150 persons would be employed in the plant's first production phase. He said the plant would begin producing dryers in about two weeks and automatic washers in about a month.
